Report

Name of the Activity: Workshop on Climate Change Biology: Mitigation and Adaptation Strategies

Organized by: School of Biological Engineering & Sciences, Shobhit University, Gangoh

Date of the Activity: 07 Sept, 2024

Place of the Activity: University Seminar Hall

No. of Students Participated: 13

Beneficiaries: Students, Faculty Members, Researchers

Activity Coordinator: Mr. Ankur Kumar Chauhan

Purpose of the Activity:

The Workshop on Climate Change Biology: Mitigation and Adaptation Strategies was organized to raise awareness about the biological impacts of climate change and to discuss the strategies that can be employed to mitigate and adapt to its effects. The workshop aimed to provide participants with an understanding of the intersection between climate change and biological systems, as well as the importance of developing sustainable solutions to address the challenges posed by climate change.

The event sought to equip students, faculty, and researchers with knowledge about the biological mechanisms involved in climate change, its effects on ecosystems and biodiversity, and the scientific strategies available to reduce and manage its impacts. Additionally, the workshop aimed to inspire students to pursue careers in climate change biology, environmental science, and conservation, and to encourage responsible actions toward a sustainable future.

Description:

The Workshop on Climate Change Biology: Mitigation and Adaptation Strategies was organized by the School of Biological Engineering & Sciences at Shobhit University, Gangoh, and was held at the University Seminar Hall. The workshop began with an overview of climate change science, explaining the mechanisms behind climate change, such as greenhouse gas emissions, global warming, and the effects of human activities on the environment. Dr. Nikhil Chand (Assistant Professor, Subharti University Meerut) explained how these changes in climate are influencing ecosystems, biodiversity, and the natural cycles of species, leading to disruptions in habitats and resource availability. The speaker also discussed how climate change is affecting agriculture, water resources, and coastal ecosystems, and how scientists are developing adaptive strategies to protect and restore these systems.

Participants engaged in discussions about climate change adaptation strategies, such as the use of genetically modified crops to withstand extreme environmental conditions, conservation techniques to protect endangered species, and the role of adaptive management in ensuring the resilience of ecosystems and human communities to future climate changes.

Outcome of the Activity:

A total of 13 students participated in the Workshop on Climate Change Biology: Mitigation and Adaptation Strategies. The workshop provided participants with a comprehensive understanding of the biological aspects of climate change and the urgent need for effective mitigation and adaptation strategies.

Students gained insights into how climate change is impacting biodiversity and ecosystems, as well as the importance of developing sustainable solutions to reduce the negative effects of climate change. The event encouraged critical thinking about how scientific innovations, such as biotechnology and conservation techniques, can help mitigate the consequences of climate change and promote environmental resilience.

In conclusion, the workshop successfully raised awareness about the biological impacts of climate change and the strategies that can be employed to mitigate and adapt to these challenges. The event emphasized the importance of a multidisciplinary approach in addressing climate change and inspired participants to take an active role in shaping a more sustainable future through scientific research, policy development, and conservation efforts. The workshop reinforced the message that combating climate change requires collective action, innovation, and responsible stewardship of the environment.

Report

Name of the Activity: Guest Lecture on Advancing Gender Inclusivity in Biomedical Engineering
Organized by: School of Biological Engineering & Sciences, Shobhit University, Gangoh
Date of the Activity: 12 Oct, 2024
Place of the Activity: University Seminar Hall
No. of Students Participated: 10
Beneficiaries: Students, Faculty Members, Researchers
Activity Coordinator: Mr. Animesh

Purpose of the Activity:

The Guest Lecture on Advancing Gender Inclusivity in Biomedical Engineering was organized to highlight the importance of gender inclusivity in the field of biomedical engineering. The lecture aimed to provide students, faculty, and researchers with a deeper understanding of the gender disparity in STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics) fields and the significance of fostering an inclusive environment for women and underrepresented groups in biomedical engineering.

The event sought to raise awareness about the barriers women face in this field and to discuss strategies for improving gender inclusivity, promoting equal opportunities, and empowering future generations of biomedical engineers. Additionally, the lecture aimed to inspire students, particularly women, to pursue careers in biomedical engineering, and to encourage the development of policies and practices that ensure a more inclusive and diverse professional environment.

Description:

The Guest Lecture on Advancing Gender Inclusivity in Biomedical Engineering was organized by the School of Biological Engineering & Sciences at Shobhit University, Gangoh, and was held at the University Seminar Hall. The Speaker began by addressing the current gender disparities in STEM fields, particularly in biomedical engineering, where women remain significantly underrepresented. The speaker highlighted the historical and societal factors that contribute to this imbalance, including stereotypes, unconscious bias, and a lack of female role models in the field. The lecture also focused on the importance of diversity and inclusivity in biomedical engineering, discussing how diverse teams bring innovative solutions to complex problems and drive advances in medical technologies.

Outcome of the Activity:

A total of 10 students participated in the Guest Lecture on Advancing Gender Inclusivity in Biomedical Engineering. The lecture provided valuable insights into the barriers that women and underrepresented groups face in biomedical engineering and the importance of fostering a more inclusive and diverse environment in the field.

In conclusion, the Guest Lecture successfully raised awareness about the importance of advancing gender inclusivity in biomedical engineering. The event emphasized the need for a collaborative approach to breaking down barriers and creating a more equitable field, where individuals of all genders can contribute to innovative solutions in biomedical engineering. The lecture inspired students and faculty to actively work toward creating a more inclusive and diverse environment in both academic settings and the workforce.

Report

Name of the Activity: Seminar on Ethics in Personalized Medicine and Genomics
Organized by: School of Biological Engineering & Sciences, Shobhit University, Gangoh
Date of the Activity: 23 Nov, 2024
Place of the Activity: University Seminar Hall
No. of Students Participated: 10
Beneficiaries: Students, Faculty Members, Researchers
Activity Coordinator: Dr. Rajeev Dutta

Purpose of the Activity:

The Seminar on Ethics in Personalized Medicine and Genomics was organized to explore the ethical challenges and considerations associated with the rapidly evolving fields of personalized medicine and genomics. The seminar aimed to provide students, faculty, and researchers with a deeper understanding of how genomics is shaping modern medicine and the ethical dilemmas that arise from the use of genetic data in medical practices.

The event sought to raise awareness of the potential risks, benefits, and societal impacts of personalized medicine and genomics, with a particular focus on privacy concerns, informed consent, genetic discrimination, and the responsible use of genetic information. It also aimed to inspire students to consider ethical frameworks and decision-making approaches in their future work in the biomedical and healthcare sectors.

Description:

The Seminar on Ethics in Personalized Medicine and Genomics was organized by the School of Biological Engineering & Sciences at Shobhit University, Gangoh, and was held at the University Seminar Hall. The speaker discussed the various techniques in genomics, such as genetic sequencing and CRISPR gene editing, and how these technologies are being used to develop personalized therapies, improve diagnostic accuracy, and enable precision medicine.

The discussion also covered the implications of genetic testing for family members, particularly in the context of inherited conditions. The ethical concerns surrounding direct-to-consumer genetic testing and the commercialization of genetic data were also explored.

The seminar included case studies and real-world examples of ethical dilemmas in genomics, allowing participants to engage in discussions and analyze the ethical implications of various scenarios.

Report

Name of the Activity: Workshop on Environmental Biotechnology: Sustainable Solutions for Industrial Processes

Organized by: School of Biological Engineering & Sciences, Shobhit University, Gangoh

Date of the Activity: 30 Jan 2025

Place of the Activity: University Seminar Hall

No. of Students Participated: 20

Beneficiaries: Students, Faculty Members, Researchers

Activity Coordinator: Ms. Sarita Sharma

Purpose of the Activity:

The Workshop on Environmental Biotechnology: Sustainable Solutions for Industrial Processes was organized to explore the role of biotechnology in providing sustainable solutions for industrial processes, with an emphasis on reducing environmental impacts and promoting eco-friendly practices. The workshop aimed to educate participants on how biotechnological innovations can address challenges such as waste management, pollution control, resource conservation, and the development of green technologies in industrial settings.

The event sought to raise awareness about the importance of environmental biotechnology in promoting sustainable industrial practices and provide a comprehensive understanding of how industries can adopt these solutions to reduce their ecological footprint. It also aimed to inspire students, faculty, and researchers to explore opportunities in environmental biotechnology, particularly in the context of sustainable industrial development.

Description:

The Workshop on Environmental Biotechnology: Sustainable Solutions for Industrial Processes was organized by the School of Biological Engineering & Sciences at Shobhit University, Gangoh, and was held at the University Seminar Hall. The event featured a distinguished guest speaker, an expert in environmental biotechnology with extensive experience in developing sustainable technologies for industrial applications. The workshop covered a wide range of topics related to environmental biotechnology, including bioremediation, bioleaching, and the use of microorganisms in wastewater treatment and air purification. One key focus of the workshop was on the use of biotechnology in waste management. The speaker also discussed the importance of using renewable resources and sustainable practices to ensure that industrial processes do not deplete natural resources or contribute to long-term environmental damage..

The workshop concluded with an interactive session, where participants were divided into small groups to discuss real-world applications of environmental biotechnology in various industrial sectors. This hands-on session encouraged students and faculty to think critically about the challenges and opportunities in applying biotechnology to industrial processes and to design potential solutions for real-life environmental problems.

Report

- Name of the Activity Workshop on Ayurveda's Contribution to Global Environmental Health
- Organized by School of Ayurveda, Shobhit University, Gangoh
- Date of the Activity 21st March, 2025
- Place of the Activity Shobhit University, Gangoh
- No. of Student Participated 40
- Beneficiaries Ayurveda practitioners will learn how to integrate environmental health principles into their daily practice, including the use of sustainable resources, eco-friendly products, and practices that promote environmental well-being.
- Activity Coordinator Dr. Nitin Goel

Purpose of the Activity:

The purpose of the Workshop on Ayurveda's Contribution to Global Environmental Health is to explore and highlight how Ayurveda principles and practices can play a significant role in addressing global environmental health challenges. The workshop aims to create awareness and foster collaboration between various stakeholders in health, sustainability, and the environment, enabling them to integrate Ayurveda's holistic worldview with modern environmental strategies. To demonstrate how Ayurveda advocates for sustainable health through its emphasis on natural remedies, plant-based medicines, and practices that minimize harm to the environment. Ayurveda's holistic approach to health integrates the mental, physical, and spiritual aspects of well-being, with a strong focus on nature's role in health.

The strengthening of the Workshop on Ayurveda's Contribution to Global Environmental Health can be achieved by focusing on several key areas that amplify the impact and ensure that the insights, skills, and practices shared during the workshop are widely adopted and sustained.

Description: School of Ayurveda, Shobhit University, Gangoh is organizing a Workshop on Ayurveda's Contribution to Global Environmental Health at shobhit university, Gangoh, Saharanpur.

Outcome of the Activity:

Participants will develop a deeper understanding of how Ayurveda principles and practices can positively influence global environmental health. This includes awareness of sustainable practices such as eco-friendly herbal sourcing, natural remedies, and low-impact farming techniques. The creation of long-term educational initiatives such as courses, certification programs, and workshops on Ayurvedic sustainability that will ensure continued learning and research in the area of Ayurveda's role in global environmental health.

Report

Name of the Activity: Seminar on The Ethics of Autonomous Vehicles

Organized by: School of Engineering and Technology, Shobhit University, Gangoh

Date of the Activity: 13 Aug 2024

Place of the Activity: University Seminar Hall

No. of Students Participated: 21

Beneficiaries: Students, Faculty Members, Researchers

Activity Coordinator: Mr. Shubham Kumar

Purpose of the Activity:

The Seminar on The Ethics of Autonomous Vehicles was organized to explore the ethical dilemmas and challenges associated with the development and deployment of autonomous vehicle technologies. The primary goal of the seminar was to provide students, faculty members, and researchers with a comprehensive understanding of the ethical considerations involved in the design, implementation, and regulation of self-driving vehicles. The seminar aimed to foster discussions on how autonomous vehicles can be safely integrated into society while ensuring that ethical concerns—such as safety, accountability, privacy, and the societal impact of these technologies—are addressed. It also sought to highlight the responsibility of engineers and policymakers in creating a framework for autonomous vehicle development that aligns with societal values and public safety.

Description:

The Seminar on The Ethics of Autonomous Vehicles was organized by the School of Engineering and Technology at Shobhit University, Gangoh, and was held at the University Seminar Hall.

The speaker discussed the potential benefits of autonomous vehicles, such as increased road safety, improved traffic efficiency, and enhanced mobility for people with disabilities. However, they also emphasized the ethical challenges that arise with the widespread adoption of autonomous vehicles.

The question of accountability when an autonomous vehicle is involved in an accident was explored, particularly focusing on who should be held responsible—the vehicle manufacturer, the software developers, or the vehicle itself. Real-life case studies were presented to examine how ethical questions emerge in such scenarios.

Another significant portion of the seminar focused on the trolley problem—a thought experiment used to discuss moral decision-making in autonomous vehicles. The implications of programming ethical decision-making into autonomous systems were explored, questioning whether it is ethical to prioritize certain lives over others in these critical moments.

The speaker also addressed privacy and data security concerns, as autonomous vehicles rely on large amounts of data, including personal information such as location, speed, and driver behavior. This raises questions about the potential misuse of such data and emphasizes the importance of protecting user privacy in accordance with laws and ethical guidelines to prevent surveillance or exploitation.

The issue of bias in decision-making algorithms was discussed, explaining how biased data used to train autonomous vehicles could lead to discriminatory behaviors..

Finally, the seminar also examined the role of regulation and policy in creating guidelines for the safe and ethical deployment of autonomous vehicles.

Outcome of the Activity:

A total of 21 students attended the Seminar on The Ethics of Autonomous Vehicles. The seminar provided attendees with a deeper understanding of the complex ethical issues surrounding autonomous vehicle technology and its potential impact on society. Students gained valuable insights into how engineers, policymakers, and society must collaborate to ensure the responsible development and deployment of self-driving vehicles.

Report

Name of the Activity: Workshop on Renewable Energy Integration into Power Grids
Organized by: School of Engineering and Technology, Shobhit University, Gangoh
Date of the Activity: 11-12 Oct 2024
Place of the Activity: J.P Mathur Auditorium
No. of Students Participated: 21
Beneficiaries: Students, Faculty Members, Researchers
Activity Coordinator: Mr. Anup Singh

Purpose of the Activity:

The Workshop on Renewable Energy Integration into Power Grids was organized to provide a comprehensive understanding of the challenges and solutions related to the integration of renewable energy sources into existing power grids. The primary aim of the workshop was to educate students, faculty members, and researchers on the technological, operational, and regulatory aspects of incorporating renewable energy such as solar, wind, and hydropower into power systems. The event sought to foster discussions on the future of energy systems and how to ensure reliable, sustainable, and efficient energy distribution while reducing dependency on non-renewable resources.

The workshop focused on understanding the complexities of energy grid integration and highlighted how renewable energy sources can contribute to a greener future. It also emphasized the role of engineers, researchers, and policymakers in driving the transition to renewable energy-powered grids, ensuring that energy security, grid stability, and sustainability goals are met.

Description:

The Workshop on Renewable Energy Integration into Power Grids was organized by the School of Engineering and Technology at Shobhit University, Gangoh, and was conducted at the University Seminar Hall. The event featured a keynote speaker. The workshop covered key topics such as the challenges of renewable energy integration into power grids. The importance of advanced energy storage systems, grid modernization, and smart grid technologies was emphasized to enhance the stability, reliability, and efficiency of the power grid.

Another significant part of the workshop addressed policy and regulatory frameworks for the integration of renewable energy into national and regional power grids. The workshop also delved into economic and environmental benefits of renewable energy integration. The discussion highlighted the potential for renewable energy to reduce greenhouse gas emissions and its role in addressing climate change.

The financial implications, including the cost of renewable energy technologies, subsidies, and incentives for renewable energy projects, were also covered. The speaker emphasized the growing trend of renewable energy becoming cost-competitive with traditional energy sources, thanks to advancements in technology and decreasing installation costs.

Outcome of the Activity:

A total of 21 students attended the Workshop on Renewable Energy Integration into Power Grids. The workshop successfully provided attendees with a deeper understanding of the key issues, technologies, and strategies involved in integrating renewable energy sources into power grids. Students gained valuable insights into how modern technologies such as energy storage, AI, and smart grids can facilitate the transition to renewable energy.

Report

Name of the Activity: Guest Lecture on Advancing Gender Diversity in Engineering Education
Organized by: School of Engineering and Technology, Shobhit University, Gangoh
Date of the Activity: 23 Nov 2024
Place of the Activity: University Seminar Hall
No. of Students Participated: 21
Beneficiaries: Students, Faculty Members, Researchers
Activity Coordinator: Mr. Naman Saini

Purpose of the Activity:

The Guest Lecture on Advancing Gender Diversity in Engineering Education was organized to raise awareness about the importance of gender diversity in engineering and technology fields. The primary aim of the lecture was to educate students, faculty members, and researchers on the challenges faced by women in engineering education and the workforce, as well as to explore strategies for fostering an inclusive and diverse academic and professional environment.

The event aimed to highlight the value of gender diversity in driving innovation, creativity, and excellence in engineering disciplines. It also focused on the role of academic institutions, industry leaders, and policymakers in promoting gender equality and creating equal opportunities for all genders in the field of engineering.

Description:

The Guest Lecture on Advancing Gender Diversity in Engineering Education was organized by the School of Engineering and Technology at Shobhit University, Gangoh, and was held at the University Seminar Hall. The event featured a distinguished guest speaker Mr. Sonkar Sanjay (Assistant Professor, Dev Bhoomi Group of Institutions, Saharanpur), an expert in gender studies, diversity advocacy, and education. Dr. [Speaker's Name] has worked extensively on initiatives aimed at increasing the representation of women and underrepresented groups in STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics) education and the workforce.

The speaker emphasized the need for educational institutions to implement policies and practices that support gender-inclusive curricula, mentorship, and career development initiatives..

A significant part of the lecture was devoted to practical strategies for advancing gender diversity in engineering. They discussed initiatives such as mentorship programs, scholarships for female engineering students, and gender-neutral recruitment processes that can help create more opportunities for women to thrive in engineering education and the workforce. The speaker also talked about the importance of role models and female mentors who can inspire and guide young women in engineering, offering advice, encouragement, and real-world experience.

The lecture also addressed the role of policy and institutional support in promoting gender diversity. The discussion also explored the role of men in supporting gender diversity and how all genders can work together to create more equitable engineering environments.

Outcome of the Activity:

A total of 21 students attended the Guest Lecture on Advancing Gender Diversity in Engineering Education. The lecture successfully provided attendees with a deeper understanding of the challenges faced by women in engineering education and the importance of fostering gender diversity in academic and professional settings. Students gained valuable insights into the importance of inclusive practices and the broader societal benefits of gender diversity in STEM fields.

Purpose of the Activity:

The purpose of the workshop on Global Environmental Initiatives and Naturopathy's Role is to raise awareness, foster collaboration, and explore how naturopathy can contribute to sustainable health practices and support global environmental efforts. This workshop aims to connect the health and environmental sectors, integrating natural, eco-friendly healing practices with broader sustainability and conservation goals.

The workshop aims to educate participants on how environmental issues, such as climate change, pollution, and habitat destruction, are directly impacting public health. It will focus on how poor environmental conditions contribute to the rise of diseases, mental health issues, and overall well-being.

Strengthening this workshop involves enhancing its content, outreach, facilitation methods, partnerships, and long-term sustainability.

- Beneficiaries : Students
- Activity Coordinator: Mr. Arjun Singh

Purpose of the Activity

The purpose of a Seminar on Legal Reforms for Gender Inclusivity is to explore and analyze the legal frameworks and reforms necessary to promote gender inclusivity, equality, and justice in society. The activity aims to:

Raise awareness of the importance of legal reforms in creating a more inclusive and equitable society, ensuring that gender inclusivity is not only recognized but actively promoted through laws and policies.

Examine existing legal frameworks related to gender equality, such as anti-discrimination laws, workplace equality regulations, and family laws, and discuss the gaps or limitations that hinder full gender inclusivity.

Identify key legal reforms needed to address contemporary gender issues, including equal access to opportunities, protection against gender-based violence, and the recognition of diverse gender identities and expressions. Discuss the role of the law in challenging traditional gender norms, breaking down stereotypes, and dismantling systems of discrimination that marginalize individuals based on gender. Highlight international frameworks and agreements (such as CEDAW - Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women) and how countries can align their domestic laws with global standards to ensure gender inclusivity

Purpose of the Activity

The purpose of a Workshop on Environmental Justice: Law and Policy is to explore the intersection of environmental protection and social justice, focusing on how legal frameworks and policies can ensure that vulnerable and marginalized communities have access to a healthy environment. The activity aims to:

Raise awareness of the concept of environmental justice, emphasizing how environmental harm disproportionately affects disadvantaged communities, including low-income populations, indigenous peoples, and communities of color.

Examine the legal principles and frameworks that guide environmental justice, such as the right to a healthy environment, non-discrimination, and the fair distribution of environmental benefits and burdens. Analyze key environmental justice laws and policies, including national and international legal instruments that address environmental racism, pollution, and the unequal impacts of environmental degradation on marginalized groups.

Discuss the role of policy in promoting environmental justice, focusing on how governments can create laws and policies that not only protect the environment but also ensure fair and equitable access to environmental benefits, resources, and remediation efforts. Explore real-world case studies and examples where environmental justice has been successfully promoted or hindered, providing practical insights into the legal and policy tools used to address environmental inequalities.

Purpose of the Activity

The purpose of a Seminar on Human Values in International Humanitarian Law (IHL) is to explore the foundational human values that underpin IHL and their importance in ensuring the protection of individuals during armed conflicts. The activity aims to:

Highlight the importance of human values in the protection of victims of armed conflict: The seminar will explore how human values, such as compassion, respect for life, and dignity, form the ethical foundation for the development and enforcement of IHL, aiming to ensure humane treatment during conflicts.

Understand the role of IHL in advancing peace and security: It aims to illustrate how the principles of IHL, rooted in human values, contribute to reducing the severity of warfare and its effects on civilians, helping to maintain peace and security during and after conflicts.

Analyze the evolving challenges to human values in modern warfare: This seminar will focus on the challenges IHL faces in addressing contemporary issues such as non-state actors, asymmetrical warfare, and technological advancements (e.g., drones and autonomous weapons), all of which may challenge core human values like proportionality and necessity.

Foster a deeper understanding of the human rights framework in relation to IHL: The seminar will explore how IHL intersects with human rights law, ensuring that the protection of basic human rights, such as the right to life and the prohibition of torture, is respected during armed conflicts.

Purpose of the Activity

The purpose of a workshop on Legal Approaches to Renewable Energy Promotion is to explore the role of law and policy in advancing the adoption and expansion of renewable energy sources. The activity aims to:

Educate participants about the legal frameworks that support the development and promotion of renewable energy, focusing on national, regional, and international laws, regulations, and policies that incentivize renewable energy adoption.

Examine the role of government policies and incentives in promoting renewable energy, including subsidies, tax credits, grants, and feed-in tariffs, and how these legal mechanisms encourage investment in clean energy technologies.

Analyze the challenges and barriers to renewable energy from a legal perspective, including issues related to grid access, land rights, regulatory approvals, and financing, and discuss ways to overcome these challenges through legal reforms and innovations.

Identify emerging legal trends and innovations in renewable energy law, such as the integration of energy storage systems, decentralized energy models, and the role of blockchain in energy transactions, and how these innovations can be supported through legal reform.

Purpose of the Activity

The purpose of a Seminar on Global Perspectives on Gender and Education is to explore how gender influences educational access, experiences, and outcomes around the world. This seminar aims to provide educators, policymakers, researchers, and activists with a deeper understanding of the diverse ways in which gender shapes education systems across different cultural, social, and economic contexts. It will also explore strategies to promote gender equality in education, highlighting both the progress that has been made and the challenges that remain. The key objectives of the seminar can include:

Understanding Gender Inequality in Global Education: The seminar will provide a comprehensive overview of how gender inequality manifests in education systems worldwide. It will examine barriers such as cultural norms, economic factors, and gender-based violence that prevent equitable access to education, particularly for girls and gender minorities in various parts of the world.

Exploring the Impact of Gender on Educational Opportunities: Participants will explore how gender affects access to education, particularly in regions where gender disparities are most pronounced. This includes addressing issues such as early marriage, child labor, gender-based violence, and societal expectations that often limit educational opportunities for girls and non-binary students.

Purpose of the Activity

The purpose of a Workshop on Human Values Education in a Multicultural Society is to equip educators, community leaders, and students with the knowledge, skills, and strategies necessary to promote human values in a multicultural educational environment. The workshop aims to highlight the importance of teaching core human values—such as respect, empathy, justice, responsibility, and integrity—while considering the diversity of cultures, beliefs, and backgrounds present in modern societies. It will provide practical approaches to fostering an inclusive and compassionate learning environment that respects and celebrates cultural differences while promoting universal human values.

Understanding Human Values in a Multicultural Context: The workshop will introduce participants to the concept of human values and their significance in a multicultural society. It will focus on how these values can transcend cultural, religious, and social differences, fostering a sense of shared humanity and mutual respect.

Promoting Tolerance and Respect for Diversity: The workshop will explore the importance of tolerance and respect for cultural diversity in educational settings. It will offer strategies for educators to address and celebrate differences, creating an environment where all students feel valued and accepted regardless of their cultural, ethnic, or religious background.

Purpose of the Activity

The purpose of a Guest Lecture on The Ethics of Educational Technology Integration is to engage educators, administrators, policymakers, and technology experts in a thoughtful discussion about the ethical considerations involved in incorporating technology into educational environments. As technology increasingly plays a central role in modern education, this lecture aims to provide insights into how educators and institutions can responsibly and ethically integrate digital tools, platforms, and resources into teaching and learning while safeguarding the rights, privacy, and well-being of students and educators. The key objectives of the lecture can include:

Exploring Ethical Challenges in Educational Technology: The lecture will address the ethical dilemmas that arise when integrating technology into education, such as issues related to data privacy, digital equity, student surveillance, and the potential for bias in algorithms used in educational tools. Participants will gain a deeper understanding of these challenges and their implications for both students and educators.

Promoting Data Privacy and Security: The lecture will highlight the importance of ensuring the privacy and security of student data when using digital tools and platforms. It will provide guidelines for ethical data handling, including the collection, storage, and sharing of personal information, and discuss how to comply with laws and regulations (e.g., GDPR, FERPA) to protect students' rights.

Report

Name of the Activity: Workshop on Sustainable Materials in Civil Engineering
Organized by: School of Engineering and Technology, Shobhit University, Gangoh
Date of the Activity: 19 Feb 2025
Place of the Activity: University Seminar Hall
No. of Students Participated: 30
Beneficiaries: Students, Faculty Members, Researchers
Activity Coordinator: Mr. Shahnawaaj

Purpose of the Activity:

The Workshop on Sustainable Materials in Civil Engineering was organized to educate students, faculty members, and researchers about the importance of using sustainable materials in civil engineering projects. The primary aim of the workshop was to explore environmentally friendly alternatives to traditional construction materials and to discuss how their use can reduce the environmental impact of civil engineering projects. Additionally, the event aimed to raise awareness about the growing need for sustainable construction practices to address challenges such as resource depletion, climate change, and waste management in the construction industry.

The workshop focused on introducing participants to a wide range of sustainable materials and technologies in civil engineering, including recycled materials, eco-friendly alternatives, and innovative construction techniques. It also aimed to highlight the role of engineers and construction professionals in promoting sustainability and the importance of designing buildings and infrastructure that contribute to environmental conservation, energy efficiency, and long-term durability.

Description:

The Workshop on Sustainable Materials in Civil Engineering was organized by the School of Engineering and Technology at Shobhit University, Gangoh, and took place at the University Seminar Hall. The speaker explained how the production and use of these materials contribute to significant carbon emissions, resource depletion, and environmental degradation. The workshop covered several key topics, including the types of sustainable materials used in civil engineering. The speaker also addressed the importance of life cycle assessment (LCA) when selecting materials, which helps determine the overall environmental impact of a material over its entire lifespan, from production to disposal.

The workshop also addressed the role of government policies and regulations in promoting the use of sustainable materials in construction.. The speaker also discussed the role of green building certifications like LEED (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design) in promoting sustainable construction practices and providing incentives for developers to adopt sustainable materials.

Outcome of the Activity:

A total of 30 students participated in the Workshop on Sustainable Materials in Civil Engineering. The workshop successfully provided participants with an in-depth understanding of sustainable materials and their potential to revolutionize the civil engineering industry. Students gained valuable insights into the different types of sustainable materials, their applications in construction projects, and the environmental and economic benefits of using them.

Purpose of the Activity:

The purpose of the seminar on Advancing Gender Equity in Naturopathic Medicine is to raise awareness, foster discussions, and promote actionable strategies aimed at addressing and reducing gender disparities within the field of naturopathic medicine.

The seminar is designed to challenge traditional gender norms, empower underrepresented groups, and create a more inclusive, equitable, and diverse naturopathic community. By addressing gender equity, the seminar seeks to create systemic changes that allow for fair opportunities and representation for individuals of all gender identities in both the practice and education of naturopathy.

To strengthen the seminar on Advancing Gender Equity in Naturopathic Medicine, it's important to focus on enhancing its impact, broadening its reach, and ensuring that the discussions lead to tangible actions and long-term changes. The seminar should engage participants at multiple levels—intellectually, emotionally, and practically—so that they leave with not only increased awareness but also a clear understanding of how to drive and sustain gender equity within the naturopathic field.

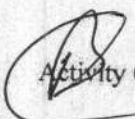

Description: School of Naturopathy and Yogic Sciences, Shobhit University, Gangoh is organizing a Seminar on Advancing Gender Equity in Naturopathic Medicine at shobhit university, Gangoh, Saharanpur.

Outcome of the Activity:

These outcomes will reflect the success of the seminar in increasing awareness, fostering actionable strategies, and promoting institutional and individual commitments to gender equity.

Participants will leave the seminar with a deeper understanding of the gender disparities that exist in the naturopathic field, including barriers to career progression, education, and leadership for women and gender minorities.

The purpose of the workshop on Sustainable Practices in the Production of Yoga Accessories is to educate and empower stakeholders in the yoga industry—such as manufacturers, designers, retailers, yoga instructors, and consumers—to adopt more eco-friendly, resource-efficient, and socially responsible practices in the production, distribution, and consumption of yoga accessories. The workshop aims to raise awareness of the environmental impacts associated with traditional production methods and provide actionable strategies for creating sustainable products that support both the wellness industry and the health of the planet.

To educate manufacturers about the environmental consequences of current production practices and introduce sustainable alternatives. This includes the use of eco-friendly materials, reducing waste in manufacturing, and adopting energy-efficient practices.

- No. of Students Participated : 15
- Beneficiaries : Students
- Activity Coordinator: Mr. Ramjanki

Purpose of the Activity

The purpose of a Seminar on Environmental Literacy for Educators at Shobhit University is to empower faculty members, educators, and administrators with the knowledge, tools, and strategies to effectively integrate environmental literacy into their teaching practices and curriculum. This seminar aims to increase awareness about environmental issues, enhance educators' understanding of sustainability, and equip them to foster environmentally responsible behaviors and critical thinking among students. The seminar will also emphasize the role of education in addressing global environmental challenges, such as climate change, resource depletion, and biodiversity loss.

Enhancing Knowledge of Environmental Issues: The seminar will provide educators with a solid foundation of knowledge about pressing environmental challenges such as climate change, pollution, deforestation, loss of biodiversity, and sustainable resource management. This will help educators understand the urgency of integrating environmental literacy into education and its relevance to their students' futures.

Understanding the Importance of Environmental Literacy in Education: The seminar will emphasize the importance of environmental literacy as a key component of holistic education. Educators will explore how environmental literacy can prepare students to understand, evaluate, and take action on environmental issues, making it an essential skill for the 21st century.

Purpose of the Activity

The purpose of a Seminar on Renewable Energy Applications in Agriculture would be to explore how renewable energy technologies can be integrated into agricultural practices to promote sustainability, reduce environmental impact, and increase productivity. The seminar would aim to:

Introduce Renewable Energy Technologies in Agriculture: Educate participants about various renewable energy sources—such as solar, wind, biomass, and geothermal—and how these can be applied to agricultural operations. The seminar would provide an overview of the potential benefits and challenges of integrating renewable energy into farming practices.

Promote Sustainable Energy Solutions for Farming: Discuss how renewable energy can replace traditional, fossil fuel-based energy sources in agricultural activities, such as irrigation, greenhouse heating, processing, and farm equipment. The seminar would highlight the importance of adopting renewable energy to reduce carbon footprints and increase the sustainability of farming practices.

Showcase Practical Applications: Highlight specific examples and case studies where renewable energy has been successfully implemented in agriculture. This could include solar-powered irrigation systems, wind turbines for energy production, biogas systems for waste-to-energy conversion, and solar drying technologies for crops. These practical applications would demonstrate the feasibility and efficiency of renewable energy solutions.

Purpose of the Activity

The purpose of a Workshop on Women's Contributions to Agricultural Innovation would be to highlight and celebrate the significant role that women play in driving agricultural innovation, particularly in terms of sustainable practices, technology adoption, and community-based solutions. The workshop would aim to:

Recognize the Role of Women in Agricultural Innovation: Educate participants about the critical contributions women make to agricultural development, from traditional knowledge and practices to cutting-edge innovations in farming. The workshop would emphasize how women have been key players in improving crop production, livestock management, and food security.

Highlight Women's Leadership in Sustainable Practices: Explore how women, particularly in rural communities, have pioneered sustainable and eco-friendly agricultural practices. The workshop would showcase examples of women-led initiatives in agroecology, organic farming, water conservation, and biodiversity protection, demonstrating their commitment to long-term agricultural sustainability.

Showcase Technological Innovations by Women: Discuss the role of women in adopting and advancing agricultural technologies, such as precision farming, digital tools, mobile applications for farmers, and renewable energy solutions for farming operations. The seminar would showcase how women are leading innovation in areas like climate-smart agriculture, irrigation technologies, and mechanization in rural areas.

Report

- Name of the Activity : Guest Lecture on Ethics of Animal Welfare in Farming
- Organized by : School of Agriculture & Environmental Sciences
- Date of the Activity : 25th November 2024
- Place of the Activity : Shobhit University, Gangoh
- No. of Students Participated : 15
- Beneficiaries : Students
- Activity Coordinator: Dr. Vikas Kumar

Purpose of the Activity

The purpose of a Guest Lecture on the Ethics of Animal Welfare in Farming would be to explore the ethical principles surrounding the treatment of animals in agricultural settings and examine how these principles can guide farming practices. The lecture would aim to:

Introduce the Concept of Animal Welfare: Educate participants about what constitutes animal welfare, including physical, mental, and emotional well-being. The lecture would provide an overview of how animal welfare is assessed in farming environments, discussing key factors such as proper housing, nutrition, health care, and freedom from unnecessary pain or distress.

Discuss Ethical Considerations in Animal Farming: Explore the moral dilemmas involved in raising animals for food, including questions about the balance between animal rights and the needs of human societies. The lecture would examine ethical theories related to animal welfare, such as utilitarianism, animal rights, and sentientism, and how these perspectives inform farming practices.

Highlight Best Practices for Ethical Animal Treatment: Discuss industry standards, regulations, and best practices aimed at ensuring humane treatment of farm animals. The lecture would cover areas like the Five Freedoms of Animal Welfare, which outline the essential rights animals should have in farming systems (freedom from hunger, fear, discomfort, pain, and injury, as well as the freedom to express natural behaviors).

Report

- Name of the Activity : Workshop on Professional Ethics in Agricultural Research
- Organized by : School of Agriculture & Environmental Sciences
- Date of the Activity : 15th March 2025
- Place of the Activity : Shobhit University, Gangoh
- No. of Students Participated : 15
- Beneficiaries : Students
- Activity Coordinator: Dr. Vikas Kumar

Purpose of the Activity

The purpose of a Workshop on Professional Ethics in Agricultural Research would be to explore the ethical considerations and responsibilities that agricultural researchers must uphold while conducting studies and experiments. The workshop would aim to:

Define Professional Ethics in Agricultural Research: Provide a clear understanding of the concept of professional ethics within the context of agricultural research. The workshop would discuss the principles and values that guide ethical decision-making, such as integrity, honesty, transparency, and accountability in research practices.

Examine Ethical Responsibilities to Society: Discuss the broader societal implications of agricultural research and the responsibility of researchers to ensure that their work contributes positively to food security, sustainable agriculture, and the well-being of communities. The workshop would emphasize the need for researchers to prioritize the public good, ensuring that their findings and innovations benefit society in a fair and equitable manner.

Address Research Integrity and Avoiding Misconduct: Focus on the importance of maintaining research integrity by avoiding practices such as falsifying data, plagiarism, or manipulation of results. The workshop would provide guidance on how to properly document, report, and present research findings in a truthful and transparent manner to avoid unethical practices.

Report

Name of the Activity: Seminar on The Role of Pharmacists in Combating Climate Change

Organized by: School of Pharmacy, Shobhit University, Gangoh

Date of the Activity: 17 Aug 2024

Place of the Activity: University Seminar Hall

No. of Students Participated: 20

Beneficiaries: Students, Faculty Members, Pharmaceutical Researchers, Healthcare Professionals

Activity Coordinator: Mr. Vasu Choudhary

Purpose of the Activity:

The Seminar on the Role of Pharmacists in Combating Climate Change was organized to examine how pharmacists can contribute to mitigating the impact of climate change, a critical global issue. The primary goal was to raise awareness among students, faculty, and healthcare professionals about the intersection of pharmacy practice and environmental sustainability. The seminar aimed to explore the responsibilities pharmacists have in promoting eco-friendly practices, reducing the environmental footprint of pharmaceutical industries, and addressing the public health challenges posed by climate change.

Description:

The Seminar on the Role of Pharmacists in Combating Climate Change was held at the University Seminar Hall and was organized by the School of Pharmacy at Shobhit University, Gangoh. The speaker outlined the crucial role pharmacists can play in mitigating these impacts, from promoting sustainable practices to educating the public about climate change-related health risks.

The seminar explored various ways in which pharmacists can reduce their environmental impact, including the adoption of sustainable pharmacy practices, waste reduction, and the role of green chemistry in drug formulation. A significant portion of the seminar was dedicated to examining the role of pharmacists in advising healthcare providers and patients on the health effects of climate change. The speaker discussed how pharmacists can help communities adapt to climate-related health issues by providing preventive measures such as vaccines, medications, and health education programs. The seminar also covered the importance of integrating climate change considerations into drug policy and the pharmaceutical supply chain to ensure resilience in the face of environmental disruptions.

The session included a dynamic Q&A segment where participants engaged in discussions on the practical ways pharmacists can contribute to climate change mitigation, asked questions about sustainable practices in pharmacy, and shared ideas on the challenges and opportunities facing the pharmaceutical industry in relation to climate change.

Report

Name of the Activity: Seminar on Addressing Gender Disparities in Healthcare Access
Organized by: School of Pharmacy, Shobhit University, Gangoh
Date of the Activity: 23-24 Oct 2024
Place of the Activity: J.P Mathur Auditorium
No. of Students Participated: 22
Beneficiaries: Students, Faculty Members, Healthcare Professionals, Researchers
Activity Coordinator: Mr. Pankaj Kumar

Purpose of the Activity:

The Seminar on Addressing Gender Disparities in Healthcare Access was organized to explore the issue of gender-based disparities in accessing healthcare services and treatments. The primary goal was to raise awareness among students, faculty, and healthcare professionals about the challenges that different genders face in receiving equal healthcare. The seminar aimed to discuss the socio-cultural, economic, and structural barriers that affect gender equality in healthcare and how healthcare systems can be improved to ensure equitable access for all.

Description:

The Seminar on Addressing Gender Disparities in Healthcare Access was held at the University Seminar Hall and was organized by the School of Pharmacy at Shobhit University, Gangoh.

The seminar highlighted the various ways in which gender disparities manifest in healthcare, including the lack of gender-sensitive medical education, underrepresentation of women and gender minorities in clinical trials, and the unequal treatment of patients based on gender stereotypes.

The seminar also explored the role of policy-making in addressing gender disparities in healthcare access.

Outcome of the Activity:

A total of 22 students attended the Seminar on Addressing Gender Disparities in Healthcare Access. The seminar provided participants with a deep understanding of the multifaceted nature of gender disparities in healthcare and the importance of integrating gender equality into healthcare systems. Students gained insights into the impact of gender on healthcare outcomes and the role healthcare professionals, including pharmacists, can play in promoting inclusive practices.

Place of the Activity: University Seminar Hall

No. of Students Participated: 21

Beneficiaries: Students, Faculty Members, Healthcare Professionals, Researchers

Activity Coordinator: Mr. Vishal Chauhan

Purpose of the Activity:

The Guest Lecture on Human Values in Disaster Response Pharmacy was organized to highlight the importance of ethical principles and human values in the practice of pharmacy during disaster response scenarios. The primary goal was to educate students, faculty, and healthcare professionals about how pharmacists can contribute to disaster management by incorporating values such as compassion, fairness, and equity in their work. The lecture aimed to discuss the unique challenges faced by pharmacists during disasters and how human-centered approaches can improve outcomes in emergency healthcare settings.

Description:

The Guest Lecture on Human Values in Disaster Response Pharmacy was held at the University Seminar Hall and was organized by the School of Pharmacy at Shobhit University, Gangoh. The event featured a distinguished guest speaker, Dr. Maryam Sarwat (Professor Amity University, Noida), an expert in emergency pharmacy practice and disaster management. Dr. Maryam Sarwat has extensive experience in working with disaster response teams and has been involved in several humanitarian efforts, providing essential pharmaceutical care during crises.

A significant portion of the lecture focused on how pharmacists can practice compassion and respect for human dignity in disaster situations. The speaker discussed how disasters often exacerbate existing inequalities in healthcare, and how pharmacists need to advocate for marginalized communities to ensure they receive the care they need. Ethical considerations regarding consent, patient autonomy, and cultural sensitivity in disaster response were also explored during the lecture.

Outcome of the Activity:

A total of 21 students attended the Guest Lecture on Human Values in Disaster Response Pharmacy. The lecture provided participants with a deeper understanding of the importance of integrating human values into pharmacy practice during disaster response. Students gained valuable insights into the ethical complexities and challenges faced by pharmacists when providing care in crisis situations.

Report

Name of the Activity: Seminar on Professional Ethics in Telepharmacy Services
Organized by: School of Pharmacy, Shobhit University, Gangoh
Date of the Activity: 12 Feb, 2025
Place of the Activity: University Seminar Hall
No. of Students Participated: 20
Beneficiaries: Students, Faculty Members, Pharmaceutical Researchers, Healthcare Professionals
Activity Coordinator: Ms. Chinkey Mittal

The Seminar on Professional Ethics in Telepharmacy Services was organized to discuss the ethical considerations and challenges that arise when providing pharmaceutical care through telepharmacy services. The primary goal was to educate students, faculty, and healthcare professionals about maintaining professional ethics, confidentiality, patient safety, and effective communication in the telepharmacy environment. The seminar aimed to provide a deeper understanding of how telepharmacy services can be ethically delivered while ensuring the highest standard of care for patients.

The Seminar on Professional Ethics in Telepharmacy Services was held at the University Seminar Hall and was organized by the School of Pharmacy at Shobhit University, Gangoh. The event included an engaging Q&A segment, where participants actively engaged with the speaker on topics such as how to navigate ethical dilemmas in telepharmacy, how to maintain patient-centered care in virtual settings, and the role of technology in ensuring quality pharmaceutical services.

A total of 20 students attended the Seminar on Professional Ethics in Telepharmacy Services. The seminar provided participants with a deeper understanding of the ethical issues and considerations involved in providing pharmaceutical care remotely. Students gained valuable insights into the importance of maintaining professionalism, ensuring patient privacy, and delivering high-quality care in telepharmacy settings.

The event sparked meaningful discussions on how telepharmacy can be implemented ethically to improve healthcare access, particularly for patients in rural or underserved areas. Many students expressed an interest in exploring the growing field of telepharmacy and the ethical challenges it presents. The seminar also encouraged students to reflect on how they can apply the ethical principles discussed in their future careers as pharmacists, especially in the context of remote or digital healthcare services.
