School of Pharmacy (AVIPS)

B. Pharm. Internship Report 2020 Duration-From June 2020-July 2020

"During the one-month internship of B.Pharm.3rd year, the intern actively participated in all Industrial procedures, including Quality Control and Quality Assurance Testing, Production, and filling & maintaining BPR and BMR demonstrating professional growth and a strong commitment to the pharmacy profession."

1. Quality Control (QC)

In the Quality Control (QC) department, students learned about ensuring the purity and safety of medicines through analytical testing. They observed the use of instruments like HPLC, UV-Vis spectrophotometers, and FTIR for testing raw materials and finished products. Interns practiced sample preparation, data interpretation, and followed Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs). They understood the importance of accuracy, calibration, and documentation in complying with pharmacopeial standards. Stability testing and contamination control procedures were also demonstrated. This experience highlighted how QC plays a vital role in maintaining product quality and meeting regulatory standards throughout the pharmaceutical manufacturing process.

2. Quality Assurance (QA)

In the Quality Assurance (QA) department, interns explored systems that ensure consistent product quality and regulatory compliance. They learned about GMP, documentation practices, validation, and handling of deviations and CAPA (Corrective and Preventive Actions). Exposure to internal audits, SOP preparation, and change control processes gave them a clear view of quality systems management. Interns understood how QA prevents errors by monitoring production processes and ensuring that final products meet safety and efficacy standards. This proactive approach taught them the importance of regulatory compliance, risk assessment, and continuous improvement in the pharmaceutical industry.

3. Production of Medicines

The Production department provided practical exposure to manufacturing processes for various dosage forms like tablets, capsules, and syrups. Students observed raw material dispensing, granulation, compression, coating, and packaging operations. They learned to operate machinery like blenders and tablet punching machines, and followed procedures for hygiene, line clearance, and process monitoring. Interns also understood the importance of adhering to GMP and real-time data recording. This hands-on experience helped them correlate theoretical concepts with practical applications, emphasizing

4. BPR and BMR

Students studied the significance of Batch Production Records (BPR) and Batch Manufacturing Records (BMR) as key documentation tools in pharmaceutical production. BMRs detail the step-by-step manufacturing process, while BPRs focus on packaging. Interns learned how accurate entries ensure traceability, accountability, and compliance with GMP. They observed how deviations are recorded and addressed, and how these records support audits and product recalls. Through practical exposure, students grasped the importance of data integrity, timely documentation, and regulatory alignment in pharmaceutical manufacturing, reinforcing the role of meticulous record-keeping in ensuring product quality and patient safety. During the one-month industry internship, all interns adhered to the following duties and Responsibilities:

Subject: Permission for Conducting Rural Agricultural Work Experience (RAWE) from 15th July 2019 to 20th December 2019

Respected Sir,

With due respect, I would like to inform you that as per the curriculum of B.Sc. (Hons.) Agriculture final year students, the Rural Agricultural Work Experience (RAWE) programme is a mandatory and essential component of experiential learning.

The objective of the RAWE programme is to provide students with a hands-on understanding of rural life, farming practices, and agricultural operations by placing them in nearby villages for a specific period. It helps in bridging the gap between theoretical knowledge and practical field application, enabling students to interact directly with farmers and gain exposure to real-life agricultural situations.

We kindly request permission to send the final year students to nearby villages for the RAWE programme scheduled from 15th July 2019 to 20th December 2019. During this period, students will be involved in:

- Participatory learning with farmers in the fields
- Observing and assisting in various agricultural operations
- Conducting village surveys and field demonstrations
- Identifying problems and suggesting sustainable solutions
- Gaining insights into rural livelihoods, agro-ecology, and farming systems

All necessary safety, academic, and logistical arrangements will be ensured by the concerned faculty coordinators.

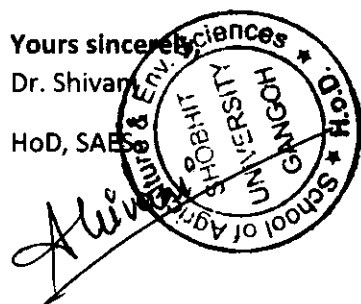

We request you to kindly grant permission for the successful execution of this programme.

Thanking you in anticipation.

Yours sincerely,

Dr. Shivan

The intern paid special attention to making the lessons student-centered, interactive, and suitable for learners with varied needs and abilities.
- Classroom Teaching: The intern conducted classroom teaching sessions on a regular basis under the guidance of the subject teacher. Lessons were delivered using appropriate pedagogy, including questioning techniques, discussion methods, storytelling, and demonstrations. Emphasis was placed on creating a positive learning environment and encouraging student participation. The intern practiced the art of clear communication, subject clarity, time management, and interactive instruction.
- Student Assessment and Evaluation: The intern designed and implemented various assessment tools to evaluate students' academic performance. These included oral questioning, class tests, worksheets, and assignments. The intern also maintained individual student progress records and provided timely, constructive feedback. Based on the assessment results, remedial teaching strategies were developed to help students who required additional support.

B. Pharm. Internship Report 2021 Duration-From June 2021-July 2021

"During the one-month internship of B.Pharm.3rd year, the intern actively participated in all Industrial procedures, including Quality Control and Quality Assurance Testing, Production, and filling & maintaining BPR and BMR demonstrating professional growth and a strong commitment to the pharmacy profession."

1. Quality Control (QC)

In the Quality Control (QC) department, students learned about ensuring the purity and safety of medicines through analytical testing. They observed the use of instruments like HPLC, UV-Vis spectrophotometers, and FTIR for testing raw materials and finished products. Interns practiced sample preparation, data interpretation, and followed Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs). They understood the importance of accuracy, calibration, and documentation in complying with pharmacopeial standards. Stability testing and contamination control procedures were also demonstrated. This experience highlighted how QC plays a vital role in maintaining product quality and meeting regulatory standards throughout the pharmaceutical manufacturing process.

2. Quality Assurance (QA)

In the Quality Assurance (QA) department, interns explored systems that ensure consistent product quality and regulatory compliance. They learned about GMP, documentation practices, validation, and handling of deviations and CAPA (Corrective and Preventive Actions). Exposure to internal audits, SOP preparation, and change control processes gave them a clear view of quality systems management. Interns understood how QA prevents errors by monitoring production processes and ensuring that final products meet safety and efficacy standards. This proactive approach taught them the importance of regulatory compliance, risk assessment, and continuous improvement in the pharmaceutical industry.

3. Production of Medicines

The Production department provided practical exposure to manufacturing processes for various dosage forms like tablets, capsules, and syrups. Students observed raw material dispensing, granulation, compression, coating, and packaging operations. They learned to operate machinery like blenders and tablet punching machines, and followed procedures for hygiene, line clearance, and process monitoring. Interns also understood the importance of adhering to GMP and real-time data recording. This hands-on experience helped them correlate theoretical concepts with practical applications, emphasizing efficiency, safety, and compliance in medicine production.

4. BPR and BMR

Students studied the significance of Batch Production Records (BPR) and Batch Manufacturing Records (BMR) as key documentation tools in pharmaceutical production. BMRs detail the step-by-step manufacturing process, while BPRs focus on packaging. Interns learned how accurate entries ensure traceability, accountability, and compliance with GMP. They observed how deviations are recorded and addressed, and how these records support audits and product recalls. Through practical exposure, students grasped the importance of data integrity, timely documentation, and regulatory alignment in pharmaceutical manufacturing, reinforcing the role of meticulous record-keeping in ensuring product quality and patient safety. During the one-month industry internship, all interns adhered to the following duties and Responsibilities:

Subject: Permission for Conducting Rural Agricultural Work Experience (RAWE) from 15th July 2020 to 20th December 2020

Respected Sir,

With due respect, I would like to inform you that as per the curriculum of B.Sc. (Hons.) Agriculture final year students, the Rural Agricultural Work Experience (RAWE) programme is a mandatory and essential component of experiential learning.

The objective of the RAWE programme is to provide students with a hands-on understanding of rural life, farming practices, and agricultural operations by placing them in nearby villages for a specific period. It helps in bridging the gap between theoretical knowledge and practical field application, enabling students to interact directly with farmers and gain exposure to real-life agricultural situations.

We kindly request permission to send the final year students to nearby villages for the RAWE programme scheduled from 15th July 2020 to 20th December 2020. During this period, students will be involved in:

- Participatory learning with farmers in the fields
- Observing and assisting in various agricultural operations
- Conducting village surveys and field demonstrations
- Identifying problems and suggesting sustainable solutions
- Gaining insights into rural livelihoods, agro-ecology, and farming systems

All necessary safety, academic, and logistical arrangements will be ensured by the concerned faculty coordinators.

We request you to kindly grant permission for the successful execution of this programme.

Thanking you in anticipation.

Yours sincerely,

Subject: Permission for Conducting Rural Agricultural Work Experience (RAWE) from 15th July 2021 to 20th December 2021

Respected Sir,

With due respect, I would like to inform you that as per the curriculum of B.Sc. (Hons.) Agriculture final year students, the Rural Agricultural Work Experience (RAWE) programme is a mandatory and essential component of experiential learning.

The objective of the RAWE programme is to provide students with a hands-on understanding of rural life, farming practices, and agricultural operations by placing them in nearby villages for a specific period. It helps in bridging the gap between theoretical knowledge and practical field application, enabling students to interact directly with farmers and gain exposure to real-life agricultural situations.

We kindly request permission to send the final year students to nearby villages for the RAWE programme scheduled from 15th July 2021 to 20th December 2021. During this period, students will be involved in:

- Participatory learning with farmers in the fields
- Observing and assisting in various agricultural operations
- Conducting village surveys and field demonstrations
- Identifying problems and suggesting sustainable solutions
- Gaining insights into rural livelihoods, agro-ecology, and farming systems

All necessary safety, academic, and logistical arrangements will be ensured by the concerned faculty coordinators.

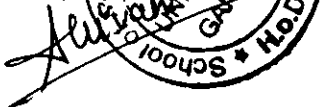

We request you to kindly grant permission for the successful execution of this programme.

Thanking you in anticipation.

Yours sincerely,

Dr. Shashi

As part of the RAWE programme, students of B.Sc. (Ag.) Conclusion:

The RAWE program provided valuable practical exposure and insight into real-life agricultural scenarios. It helped bridge the gap between theoretical learning and field realities, enhancing the students' understanding of rural farming systems and improving their communication and problem-solving skills. Summary:

"During the one-month internship of B.Pharm.3rd year, the intern actively participated in all Industrial procedures, including Quality Control and Quality Assurance Testing, Production, and filling&maintaining BPR and BMR demonstrating professional growth and a strong commitment to the pharmacy profession."

1. Quality Control (QC)

In the Quality Control (QC) department, students learned about ensuring the purity and safety of medicines through analytical testing. They observed the use of instruments like HPLC, UV-Vis spectrophotometers, and FTIR for testing raw materials and finished products. Interns practiced sample preparation, data interpretation, and followed Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs). They understood the importance of accuracy, calibration, and documentation in complying with pharmacopeial standards. Stability testing and contamination control procedures were also demonstrated. This experience highlighted how QC plays a vital role in maintaining product quality and meeting regulatory standards throughout the pharmaceutical manufacturing process.

2. Quality Assurance (QA)

In the Quality Assurance (QA) department, interns explored systems that ensure consistent product quality and regulatory compliance. They learned about GMP, documentation practices, validation, and handling of deviations and CAPA (Corrective and Preventive Actions). Exposure to internal audits, SOP preparation, and change control processes gave them a clear view of quality systems management. Interns understood how QA prevents errors by monitoring production processes and ensuring that final products meet safety and efficacy standards. This proactive approach taught them the importance of regulatory compliance, risk assessment, and continuous improvement in the pharmaceutical industry.

3. Production of Medicines

The Production department provided practical exposure to manufacturing processes for various dosage forms like tablets, capsules, and syrups. Students observed raw material dispensing, granulation, compression, coating, and packaging operations. They learned to operate machinery like blenders and tablet punching machines, and followed procedures for hygiene, line clearance, and process monitoring. Interns also understood the importance of adhering to GMP and real-time data recording. This hands-on experience helped them correlate theoretical concepts with practical applications, emphasizing efficiency, safety, and compliance in medicine production.

4. BPR and BMR

Students studied the significance of Batch Production Records (BPR) and Batch Manufacturing Records (BMR) as key documentation tools in pharmaceutical production. BMRs detail the step-by-step manufacturing process, while BPRs focus on packaging. Interns learned how accurate entries ensure traceability, accountability, and compliance with GMP. They observed how deviations are recorded and addressed, and how these records support audits and product recalls. Through practical exposure, students grasped the importance of data integrity, timely documentation, and regulatory alignment in pharmaceutical manufacturing, reinforcing the role of meticulous record-keeping in ensuring product quality and patient safety.

Each plan included well-defined learning objectives, engaging teaching strategies, suitable teaching aids, and methods of assessment. Lesson plans were prepared in advance and approved by the mentor teacher. The intern paid special attention to making the lessons student-centered, interactive, and suitable for learners with varied needs and abilities.
- Classroom Teaching: The intern conducted classroom teaching sessions on a regular basis under the guidance of the subject teacher. School of Pharmacy (AVIPS)

B. Pharm. Internship Report 2022 Duration-From June 2022-July 2022

"During the one-month internship of B.Pharm.3rd year, the intern actively participated in all Industrial procedures, including Quality Control and Quality Assurance Testing, Production, and filling & maintaining BPR and BMR demonstrating professional growth and a strong commitment to the pharmacy profession."

1. Quality Control (QC)

In the Quality Control (QC) department, students learned about ensuring the purity and safety of medicines through analytical testing. They observed the use of instruments like HPLC, UV-Vis spectrophotometers, and FTIR for testing raw materials and finished products. Interns practiced sample preparation, data interpretation, and followed Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs). They understood the importance of accuracy, calibration, and documentation in complying with pharmacopeial standards. Stability testing and contamination control procedures were also demonstrated. This experience highlighted how QC plays a vital role in maintaining product quality and meeting regulatory standards throughout the pharmaceutical manufacturing process.

2. Quality Assurance (QA)

In the Quality Assurance (QA) department, interns explored systems that ensure consistent product quality and regulatory compliance. They learned about GMP, documentation practices, validation, and handling of deviations and CAPA (Corrective and Preventive Actions). Exposure to internal audits, SOP preparation, and change control processes gave them a clear view of quality systems management. Interns understood how QA prevents errors by monitoring production processes and ensuring that final products meet safety and efficacy standards. This proactive approach taught them the importance of regulatory compliance, risk assessment, and continuous improvement in the pharmaceutical industry.

3. Production of Medicines

The Production department provided practical exposure to manufacturing processes for various dosage forms like tablets, capsules, and syrups. Students observed raw material dispensing, granulation, compression, coating, and packaging operations. They learned to operate machinery like blenders and tablet punching machines, and followed procedures for hygiene, line clearance, and process monitoring. Interns also understood the importance of adhering to GMP and real-time data recording. This hands-on experience helped them correlate theoretical concepts with practical applications, emphasizing efficiency, safety, and compliance in medicine production.

4. BPR and BMR

Students studied the significance of Batch Production Records (BPR) and Batch Manufacturing Records (BMR) as key documentation tools in pharmaceutical production. BMRs detail the step-by-step manufacturing process, while BPRs focus on packaging. Interns learned how accurate entries ensure traceability, accountability, and compliance with GMP. They observed how deviations are recorded and addressed, and how these records support audits and product recalls. Through practical exposure, students grasped the importance of data integrity, timely documentation, and regulatory alignment in pharmaceutical manufacturing, reinforcing the role of meticulous record-keeping in ensuring product quality and patient safety. During the one-month industry internship, all interns adhered to the following duties and responsibilities:

Subject: Permission for Conducting Rural Agricultural Work Experience (RAWE) from 15th July 2022 to 20th December 2022

Respected Sir,

With due respect, I would like to inform you that as per the curriculum of B.Sc. (Hons.) Agriculture final year students, the Rural Agricultural Work Experience (RAWE) programme is a mandatory and essential component of experiential learning.

The objective of the RAWE programme is to provide students with a hands-on understanding of rural life, farming practices, and agricultural operations by placing them in nearby villages for a specific period. It helps in bridging the gap between theoretical knowledge and practical field application, enabling students to interact directly with farmers and gain exposure to real-life agricultural situations.

We kindly request permission to send the final year students to nearby villages for the RAWE programme scheduled from 15th July 2022 to 20th December 2022. During this period, students will be involved in:

- Participatory learning with farmers in the fields
- Observing and assisting in various agricultural operations
- Conducting village surveys and field demonstrations
- Identifying problems and suggesting sustainable solutions
- Gaining insights into rural livelihoods, agro-ecology, and farming systems

All necessary safety, academic, and logistical arrangements will be ensured by the concerned faculty coordinators.

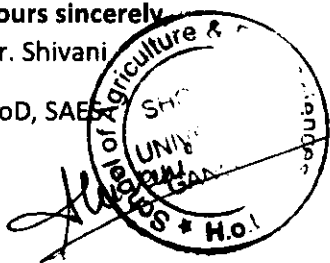

We request you to kindly grant permission for the successful execution of this programme.

Thanking you in anticipation.

Yours sincerely,

Dr. Shivani

Duration-From July 2022-December2022

As part of the RAWE programme, students of B.Sc. (Ag.) Area of Visit:

Students were divided into groups and assigned villages across the following blocks:

- Nakur Block
- Nanauta Block
- Sarsawa Block
- Gangoh Block

Some of the villages covered include:

- Kandhala, Deoli, and Badgaon (Nanauta)

Summary:

"During the one-month internship of B.Pharm.3rd year, the intern actively participated in all Industrial procedures, including Quality Control and Quality Assurance Testing, Production, and filling & maintaining BPR and BMR demonstrating professional growth and a strong commitment to the pharmacy profession."

1. Quality Control (QC)

In the Quality Control (QC) department, students learned about ensuring the purity and safety of medicines through analytical testing. They observed the use of instruments like HPLC, UV-Vis spectrophotometers, and FTIR for testing raw materials and finished products. Interns practiced sample preparation, data interpretation, and followed Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs). They understood the importance of accuracy, calibration, and documentation in complying with pharmacopeial standards. Stability testing and contamination control procedures were also demonstrated. This experience highlighted how QC plays a vital role in maintaining product quality and meeting regulatory standards throughout the pharmaceutical manufacturing process.

2. Quality Assurance (QA)

In the Quality Assurance (QA) department, interns explored systems that ensure consistent product quality and regulatory compliance. They learned about GMP, documentation practices, validation, and handling of deviations and CAPA (Corrective and Preventive Actions). Exposure to internal audits, SOP preparation, and change control processes gave them a clear view of quality systems management. Interns understood how QA prevents errors by monitoring production processes and ensuring that final products meet safety and efficacy standards. This proactive approach taught them the importance of regulatory compliance, risk assessment, and continuous improvement in the pharmaceutical industry.

3. Production of Medicines

The Production department provided practical exposure to manufacturing processes for various dosage forms like tablets, capsules, and syrups. Students observed raw material dispensing, granulation, compression, coating, and packaging operations. They learned to operate machinery like blenders and tablet punching machines, and followed procedures for hygiene, line clearance, and process monitoring. Interns also understood the importance of adhering to GMP and real-time data recording. This hands-on experience helped them correlate theoretical concepts with practical applications, emphasizing efficiency, safety, and compliance in medicine production.

4. BPR and BMR

Students studied the significance of Batch Production Records (BPR) and Batch Manufacturing Records (BMR) as key documentation tools in pharmaceutical production. BMRs detail the step-by-step manufacturing process, while BPRs focus on packaging. Interns learned how accurate entries ensure traceability, accountability, and compliance with GMP. They observed how deviations are recorded and addressed, and how these records support audits and product recalls. Through practical exposure, students grasped the importance of data integrity, timely documentation, and regulatory alignment in pharmaceutical manufacturing, reinforcing the role of meticulous record-keeping in ensuring product quality and patient safety.

Subject: Permission for Conducting Rural Agricultural Work Experience (RAWE) from 15th July 2023 to 20th December 2023

Respected Sir,

With due respect, I would like to inform you that as per the curriculum of B.Sc. (Hons.) Agriculture final year students, the Rural Agricultural Work Experience (RAWE) programme is a mandatory and essential component of experiential learning.

The objective of the RAWE programme is to provide students with a hands-on understanding of rural life, farming practices, and agricultural operations by placing them in nearby villages for a specific period. It helps in bridging the gap between theoretical knowledge and practical field application, enabling students to interact directly with farmers and gain exposure to real-life agricultural situations.

We kindly request permission to send the final year students to nearby villages for the RAWE programme scheduled from 15th July 2023 to 20th December 2023. During this period, students will be involved in:

- Participatory learning with farmers in the fields
- Observing and assisting in various agricultural operations
- Conducting village surveys and field demonstrations
